LIBRARY — The Los Angeles Public Library joined with Scholastic Books to bring the Harry Potter "Knight Bus" to the Mid-Valley Regional Branch and the downtown Central Library July 7. More than 600 fans - young and old alike - clamored into the purple double-decker bus to record a video about why they love the Harry Potter books.

The bus gained fame through the popular series by J.K. Rowling, and is part of Scholastic's national tour to promote the July 21 release of the final book, Harry Potter and the Deathly Hallows. City Librarian Fontayne Holmes greeted the fans at both locations, and branch librarians planned activities for the fans while waiting for their turn on the bus.
